U.S. Senate and U.S. Congress

One full week, from morning to eve, walking the long hallways, physically went into each of below offices, spoke with those whose area was defense or energy matters. I chose first all the Representatives who sit on the Armed Service Committees, or Appropriation Committee's that are responsible for the funding of these weapons. Included were a few other Representatives who are influential, and naturally my own reps. Each were handed DVDs, and written material on Good Thinking, with the online link to share, and a request for feedback. Each were spoke to about the upcoming resolution being discussed by some 150 nations trying to make these illegal in 2017-18.

I must admit it was sobering that the vast majority of office staff had little to no idea of the real cost of these weapons, nor the capacity for destruction of one of them, nor the numbers that we have, nor that we're building new facilities, nor knew anything about the International movements against them. Truly, a dangerous bubble. Most were very polite, and listened, for which I'm thankful. If any watched or spread the word? I followed up with all visits with a letter, call and/or email.

Film Festivals

Good Thinking was disqualified by most the larger film fests because of my decision to make it public online in March, for free to those organizations concerned with this topic. I felt this information should not wait a year for consideration. Besides, I didn't think most fests would take a 3.5 hr film. But to my surprise these festivals did in 2016 (several awards yet to be announced, and several more coming in 2017, not listed here):

** Won "Best Documentary" at the Montreal International Wreath Awards Film Festival

Won "Award of Excellence" at the Headline International Film Festival

Won "Winner, Award of Recognition" at the IndieFest Film Awards

Won "Merit Award" at the Awareness Film Festival (Los Angeles)

"Official Selection" AAB International Film Festival, N. India

"Official Selection" Lake View International Film Festival (India)

"Official Selection" WIPE Film Festival (Berlin)
